THE AUTHOR'S FORWARD

It would be presumptuous on the part of any one writer to claim the entire authorship of this historic sketch. This information has been secured by the friendly cooperation of residents and settlers of this community; without which this story would be lacking in accuracy and interest. In reality, the Woodland Hill Settlement was hewn out of the primeval forest, transformed into productive farms and comfortable homes. This progress and development of fifty eight years surpasses the fondest dreams of the first settlers.

The author, who was an early pioneer here, began searching for data in 1933. Although she realizes her limitations in undertaking so great a task, yet it is hoped that this record may, in some measure, preserve to posterity, facts which otherwise might have been lost.

ODE TO THE PATIENT PIONEER

The world can easily spare the man
Who pauses a moment here or there
To make a promise or form a plan
Or to pluck some flower that may be fair;
But the world has use for the man who gives
His best for the joys that he wins away --
The world with a welcoming cheer receives
The determined man who has come to stay.

There are few rewards for the pioneer
Whose thoughts are only for sudden gains,
Who camps for a day on the far frontier
Then journeys backward across the plains;
But wood and valley and plain and slope
Yield their best to him who has blazed the way
To the scene on which he has set his hope,
Who, having arrived, is there to stay.

The making of the,
WOODLAND HILL SETTLEMENT AND VICINITY.

It must be borne in mind that this early settlement of which I am writing, was made on the Lapwai Reservation for the Nez Perce Indians. It was thrown open by the government to white settlers, November 8, 1895. This Reservation is located in Nez Perce, Lewis, Clearwater and Idaho counties in the state of Idaho.

Christian Missionaries

The Indians, for the most part, were friendly, having accepted the Christian faith through the efforts of the early Presbyterian missionaries.

Henry Spaulding started the first mission in 1837, but abandoned it after the "Whitman Massacre" in 1847. He returned to Kamiah, a small Indian village on the Clearwater River in 1870 and died in 1874.

Sue McBeth came in 1873 and her sister, Kate, joined her in the year 1879. Sue died in 1893 and Kate's death was in 1914. Their nieces, Mazie and Elizabeth Crawford came in 1899 and later on, Rev. A. M. McLean and wife, Fannie, took up the work. (Fannie died in 1902.)

A Presbyterian church still stands and a few huts mark the place where once was the early mission. The location is on the east side of the river about two miles above the present site of Kamiah. The McBeth sisters, the Misses Crawford and Fannie McLean are buried in a small plot, known as "Holy Ground," in the church yard nearby. A monument in North Lapwai (Spaulding) marks the grave of Henry Spaulding. Later on a school building was erected north of the mission for the Indians.

A second Presbyterian church building was erected in 1916, in a small Indian village on the west side of the Clearwater, near the present site of Kamiah.

A government sawmill and a flour mill were erected a short distance up the river from the mission. Later on a school building was built north of the mission for the Indians. Nearby was an Indian village, the first Kamiah, from which groceries, grain and dry goods were obtained. When Lewis and Clark came here in 1806, they found this winter camp for the Indians which means "Winter Home."

White settlers came to the valley in 1886, when a small trading post was established near the mouth of Lawyer's Canyon Creek. (Mr. Jorgans was post master. F. F. Pomeroy soon built a hotel there.) A steel bridge was built across this creek in 1910. This post was abandoned and the post office moved across the Clearwater to the Indian village. Felix Corbett, Indian, owned the ferry that crossed the river there.

Near this Indian village, a burg was built by white men in 1899. It was known as "Gregg," named in honor of George Gregg, its postmaster. This burg was abandoned and the post office was moved again to a new location near the east end of the railroad bridge that spans the Clearwater north of Kamiah. This burg was known as Conrad, named in honor of a settler nearby.*

As the only means of transportation had been by pack horse or pack mule and team, and the roads were almost impassable, it was necessary to build highways for travel. In 1917 the Tome Ta Ha road was built and the Woodland-Hill highway was soon planned on the east side of the river, while the Seven Mile road and the Nez Perce road were built on the west side of the Clearwater. The railroad up the Clearwater from Lewiston to Stites, Idaho, was completed in 1899.

It now seemed necessary that a new town be established near the railroad. As land could not be obtained for this purpose, a town-site was rented from the Indians in 1900, near the Kip Kip ferry that crossed the Clearwater there. (This village was later destroyed by fire after it had been abandoned.)

The only founders of this village that are now living are Dr. J. F. Bridwell, postmaster and druggist and Ernest Johnson, depot-agent. Other founders were F. F. Pomeroy and Mrs. McTarnohan who owned hotels; Dr. McCallie, dentist; C. J. Johnson, undertaker; Renshaw Brothers Store; Mr. Jarbo, livery stable; The Spiker, hardware; Mrs. Downing, restaurant. There was an Odd Fellows Hall and a black-smith shop.

In the year 1905, a new town site of twenty-two acres was purchased from the Indians and the present town of Kamiah began to grow. The old depot-site is still in use.

The Kip Kip Ferry was abandoned and a toll bridge took its place in 1909. This bridge was purchased by Idaho and Lewis counties and adjoining districts which then had been formed . The toll from this bridge was lifted in 1916. A new Nez Perce road was built in 1924, which replaced the old one constructed in 1903.

*Ref. Dr. J. F. Bridwell of Kamiah

Woodland Hill

What is known as "Woodland Hill" sometimes called "Quaker Hill" or "Carrot Ridge" is located between the Clearwater River on the west and the Lolo Creek, a tributary, on the north. It is about ten miles north of Kamiah and has an elevation of three thousand feet.

Here is a wonderful panorama for one can see what is known as the "Weippe" country to the north; to the east may be seen the Bitter Root range of the Rocky Mountains; looking south one can see the Clearwater Valley and the "Camas" prairie to Mt. Idaho and farther south into the "Buffalo Hump" and "Seven Devil" Mountain regions; while to the west one may gaze across the Nez Perce prairie to "Cottonwood" butte and "Craig" Mountain.

This beautiful scenery, the rich soil, the mild climate, the springs of clear cold water, the bunch-grass and the timber for fuel and building purposes, made this a desirable place where settlers might begin life anew.

The Pioneers

Many of the early pioneers were a modest peaceful folk known as "Friends" or "Quakers." Some traveled by team from Northbranch, Jewell County, Kansas. Others came from Burr Oak and Galena, Kansas, while a number of families came from other states. All worked together to make this a progressive community in which to live.

They formed a nucleus for a settlement which grew and prospered. They were cheerful, hopeful, brave and of rugged strength and character. They endured the privations and suffering of pioneers and overcame all difficulties. "They toiled and suffered and died that we might inherit the promise."

WOODLAND SETTLEMENT

Little clearing on the hill top,
From the wide world set apart;
A quiet corner, deep seclusion -
Just a spot to win your heart.

Up where heaven's air is purer,
Where the pines grow straight and tall;
Where the grass is greener, thicker,
You can hear Dame Nature's call.

There a guest so warmly greeted
Finds his welcome never ends;
And departing leaves a teardrop -
For the people there are Friends.

STORIES GRANDFATHER TELLS

by

Mark Baldwin

Oh, marvelous tales can my grandfather tell
Of wonderful times and the things that befell
When he was a boy, and roamed the wild wood,
Enjoying his life as only a boy could;
With vigor and health, and with pioneer blood
Flowing strong in his veins. He swam the swift flood
Or hunted the shy, little, impudent beast
That peopled the forest and stole for their feasts
The corn from the crib, or took from the soil
The grain, making useless the pioneer's toil.
And I think to myself then, how grand it would be
To live in a hut in the forest so free
From the vain pompous ways of the life of today,
From the pace we are living at present - but say,
When grandfather tells of the woodticks and lice,
Of the fleas and the chiggers (wee gnats), the rats
and the mice,
The fever and ague (la grippe), I don't think I'd lose
My freedom from them to have been in his shoes.

Woodland Settlement

This settlement, like that of Plymouth Rock, had to be made from the beginning. The forests had to be cleared, farms made and grain and hay raised for livestock. Buildings were to be erected for homes, schools and churches. House-raising days were of neighborhood interest. Logs were pulled into place by horse team. The floors were of natural earth. Perhaps a rattlesnake might be found behind the door or sleeping near the fireplace. These fireplaces were made of stones with stick chimneys plastered with clay. Worm fences made of split rails served as protection against herds of Indians' horses. The range limit of domestic livestock also had to be considered. Vigilance was necessary against the bear and the wild cat. Long rides on horseback in search of strayed livestock were necessary.

Needed groceries were brought by pack-horse from Gregg, and the Felix Corbett store which was located in the Indian village (first Kamiah). These trading posts were located on the Clearwater River, a distance of twelve miles.

Teams of eight or ten horses were secured to pull a wagon up the mountain (Sugar-loaf Hill) over a trail-road. When descending this "Hill," it was necessary to tie a tree to the back of the wagon to serve as a brake. Home-made sleds were used for hauling water as well as coasting and sleighing. Settlers took their turn in using the one neighborhood plow when making gardens.

The first road up the "hill," known as the "Bolar Grade," was built in 1898. (It was a fifteen percent grade.) Another outlet was a six percent grade to Pardee, a railroad station on the Clearwater, west of the Woodland settlement. Still another road was built across the Lolo Creek to the Weippe Country, which is located north of Woodland Hill.

The Woodland postoffice was granted in 1898, with Isaac George as postmaster. This office was in his home which was located about a mile north of the present Woodland site. The present postoffice and grocery store building was erected in the year 1906. Lorenzo D. George, son of Isaac and Hannah George, then had charge of the office and store. The family lived in a portion of the building. Lorenzo D. owned the blacksmith shop nearby. Isaac, Hannah and Lorenzo D. are at rest in the cemetery which is located one-half mile east of Woodland.

The land for this cemetery, donated by Nathan Osburn, 1899, was previously homesteaded by Nineveh Hateley.

Gracie Kellum was the first child born at Woodland in 1897, and the first person buried there, 1899. Edwin

J. Ratcliff (twin) was the second and his mother, Martha A. Ratcliff, the third; Shilder Kellum, Gracie's grandfather, was the fourth interment there, 1901.

Saw Mills

As timber in this vicinity was abundant, a number of sawmills were erected. Harry Rawson made a homestead filing, 1897. His nephew, Myron R. Rawson, made final proof on this land and built a sawmill. This location was about four miles east of Woodland, in the vicinity later known as "Forest Center," and "Harrisburg." Myron R. purchased some adjoining property from Robert Gifford that had been homesteaded by Rev. Benjamin White. (George Harvey later on purchased this property.) Myron R. worked for the Plank Brothers who owned a sawmill on the Amandus King ranch. This mill was moved elsewhere and one was erected there by Q. V. Moon. (Oliver U. Plank was sawer at this mill.) Myron R. Rawson soon built a new mill on the Fred Limbacker ranch, northwest of Woodland; another on the Jason Kellum farm not far distant. Still another mill was erected near his first location, on the Ernest Liedkie ranch. A sixth sawmill, known as the "Rawson-Works" mill, was built at Caribel in 1914. This location was about ten miles east of Woodland.

This company built a flume that conveyed the lumber to a planing mill they erected on the east side of the Clearwater which is a distance of about one mile north of Kamiah. Later on this flume was abandoned. Myron R. sold his interest in the mill and moved to Spokane where he went into the business of buying and selling machinery.* James Huse Collins and son, George H., built a sawmill on the Wilse George ranch, another on the Hal Emery farm, and a third mill on the Enoch Kenworthy homestead in 1907. These mills were near Woodland.

The George Huse Collins family moved to Canada.

Later on, John Moon and Frank Bacon built a mill on the John Moon place which previously was homesteaded by Milton George. The Harvey brothers erected a sawmill in 1922 on the Torn Yoder ranch in the Harrisburg vicinity.

The meat problem was solved for the first winter, as deer were plentiful in the forest. Carrots and rutabagas were raised for family use as well as food for livestock. Tall grass was cut for hay.

*Ref. Myron R. Rawson

Ref. Ivan A. Sanders

Some of the men folk set fence-posts at Kamiah and earned money with which to purchase flour and sugar.

Enoch and Rachel Kenworthy and Enos Adamson and sons, Clarence and Elmer, were the first cheese makers of the vicinity. Others of their locality soon learned this occupation.

Enoch Kenworthy had charge of the government sawmill and flour mill above Kamiah, near the Indian Mission, 1900.

Dr. Taylor of Kamiah served the Woodland vicinity about the year 1900. Dr. W. F. McMahon later came to Kamiah. Then Dr. C. H. Bryan came there about 1914. He has rendered his services since that time. He still resides at Kamiah.

Woodland School

The first school (subscription) of three months, was taught by Lizzie Dillon (deceased) in her home in 1896. This home was later purchased by the John W. Mason family. Its location is one mile west of Woodland. Such books as settlers had were used in this school.

The community cut and hewed logs for a school house. Split logs were used for seats. Each family made its own desk which served three or four students. Hester Pogue taught the first term of school of five months in this new log building in 1897. A frame school building was erected nearby in 1902, as lumber could then be obtained from the saw mills. New seats were purchased.

Friends Church

A Friends church was organized in 1900 under the leadership of Benjamin White, a devout man and a friend of all who knew him. He was the first minister to preach there. Services were held in the school house. This building was the center of all social activities. These included church, Sunday School, lyceum and spelling schools.

Austin S. George was a leader in Christian educational and social activities. He was a man of strong Christian influence. Here is a tribute to him: "Surely a crown awaited him at the end of his race."

The first Sunday School was held in the home of the Jason Kellum family.

For some time it seemed that the Friends Church organization there was doomed as it was abandoned in 1920. Some members were deceased, others had moved to new homes, and the few remaining ones transferred their membership to the Star, Idaho organization.

Reorganization of the Friends Church at Woodland, Idaho

Rev. Clark Smith, Quarterly Meeting Superintendent from Boise, Idaho, reorganized the Monthly Meeting of the Friends Church at Woodland in 1933. (Chester Hadley of Portland was District Superintendent. He died in Portland, 1940.) A new interest was shown as other Friends seeking new homes came to this vicinity. There were new converts and memberships.

D. Ellen Sanders was a tireless worker in the church for many years. She and Nancy Smith were the elders of this revised Monthly Meeting. Alta Craven and Ernest Liedkie were overseers, Marguerite Haile was correspondent and Arthur Sanders was treasurer.

Trees were donated by the folk of the vicinity and lumber was sawed for a parsonage which was built in 1934. A church was erected and was dedicated August 15, 1943. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Everett Craven of Boise. Rev. Joseph Reece, district superintendent was present. His home was in Portland.

"Friends Declaration of Faith"

"We believe in one holy, almighty, all-wise and everlasting God, the Father, the Creator and Preserver of all things; and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, by whom all things were made, and by whom all things cometh; and in one Holy Spirit, proceeding from the Father and the Son, and the Reprover of the world, the witness for Christ and the Teacher, Guide and Sanctifier of the people of God; and that these Three are one in the eternal God-head to Whom be honor, praise and thanksgiving now and forever.

Amen."

THE QUAKER OF OLDEN TIME

The Quaker of the olden time!
 How calm and firm and true,
 Unspotted by its wrong and crime,
 He walked the dark earth through.
 The lust of power, the love of gain,
 The thousand lures of sin
 Around him has no power to stain
 The purity within.

With that deep insight which detects
 All great things in the small
 And knows how each man's life affects
 The spiritual life of all;
 He walked by faith and not by sight,
 By love and not by law;
 The presence of the wrong or right
 He rather felt than saw.

He felt that wrong with wrong partakes,
 That nothing stands alone;
 That whoso gives the motive, makes
 His brother's sin his own.
 And, passing not for doubtful choice
 Of evils great or small,
 He listened to that inward voice
 Which called away from all.

Oh spirit of that early day,
 So pure and strong and true,
 Be with us in the narrow way
 Our faithful fathers knew.
 Give strength the evil to forsake,
 The cross of truth to bear,
 And love and reverent fear to make
 Our daily lives a prayer.

QUAKER HILL

The hill is white with many snows,
 But down in the valley where the clear water flows
 And sweeps along with a whirl and a rush
 The ground is covered with mud and slush.
 We started down the hill on a fine winter day,
 We had it in mind to go to Gregg,
 With a little butter and a few dozen eggs.
 The cutter goes fine as we glide along
 Cheering our way with happy song.
 Distant landscape attracts our attention.
 Many fine views are worthy of mention.
 We return to the present with a jar and a thud,
 We are grounded on a rock and stuck in the mud.
 We are now in a most sorrowful plight -
 We must hurry around or be out after night.
 We must leave horses and cutter and foot it through.
 This remains the only thing we can do.
 We have no saddle our horses to pack,
 So gather our plunder and take the track.
 As we wade through the mud, we feel quite sad,
 (I hope we think of nothing that is bad.)

Puffing and panting we reach the town,
 Our butter weighs short and our eggs are down.
 We feel our trade won't near reach around,
 With soda priced at fifteen cents a pound.
 We hope that at no distant day
 Better times will roll this way,
 When Woodland country brings the mill
 And sets it up on Quaker Hill
 To saw timber and grind our grain,
 We hope prosperity will come to reign.
 But we will find we have one want still --
 We need a store on the top of the Hill.

This wish was granted about 1900, when John Haskins added a grocery store to his home which was a short distance north of Woodland near the Austin S. George home.

Forest Center and Harrisburg Settlement

As this district is divided by "Wall Canyon," two vicinities were formed in 1896. Woodland was on the west and Forest Center on the east side of this Canyon. The Forest Center school house was erected on the John Young ranch in 1900. This ranch was known as the Charles Dickinson place. It was located about three miles east of Woodland on the road to Kamiah. The lumber for this building was donated by Myron R. Rawson and Oscar A. Fox. Jannie Rawson, sister of Myron R. Rawson, taught the first and the second terms of school there.*

Later on a new school building was built a short distance west of the old location. This was known as the "Harrisburg" school. Other records of this school were not available.

Frank E. Harris had purchased a ranch from Jack Sandy which was one-half mile west of this school house. A post-office was granted and named in his honor. He also owned a store adjoining his home. Mrs. Adorothy Faler took charge of the post office in a small building nearby, from 1907 to 1910.

Meantime, Frank E. Harris erected a building across the road to the east, for the postoffice and store with George F. Sanders and family in charge. Later on, Eva Knight purchased the business.*

Frank E. Harris and family moved to Kamiah and purchased a meat market. The postoffice and the store were discontinued and a rural route now accommodates this locality.

The United Brethren Church

The United Brethren church was organized by Rev. James L. Pearson of Myrtle, Idaho in 1904. Services were held in the Forest Center school house. A church building was erected on the Frank E. Harris ranch and dedicated by Bishop Barclay on November 10, 1909. Some friends living in this vicinity joined this church.

Other records of this church were not available.

Still another school district was formed just east of the Harrisburg vicinity and the school was known as Pleasant View. This location was near the James G. Davis home. The first school was in the home of George Maguire.

A post office was granted at Caribel.

PASSING OF THE PIONEERS

They're going fast, those hearts so rare,
Those hearts we love, those lives so fair,
And pure and free from evil deeds,
And from the sins which passion breeds.

They wrought, transformed with tireless hands,
A wilderness in fertile lands:
Each leaves to those who bear his name,
A legacy of brighter fame
Than could be won in worldly strife --
The memory of an upright life.

Summary

Many of the early pioneers have gone to their well earned rest. Some have lived to see the country well developed, and to realize their efforts were not in vain. Many of their children have not only kept their faith, but have developed into true manhood and womanhood, showing themselves worthy of their parents' efforts and sacrifice.

As I close this review of a long gone past, there comes to my mind some stanzas of Gray's immortal "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard:"

Beneath those rugged elms (pines) that yew trees shade
Where leaves the turf in many a moldering heap,
Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

The breezy call of incense - breathing morn,
The swallow twittering from the straw-build shed,
The cock's shrill clarion, or echoing horn
No more shall raise them from their lowly bed.

For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn,
Or busy housewife ply her evening care;
No children run to lisp their sire's return
Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share.

Oft did the harvest to their sickle yield,
Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke;
How jocund did they drive their team afield!
How bow'd the woods beneath their steady stroke!

Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their lonely joys, and destiny obscure;
No grandeur hear, with a disdainful smile,
The short and simple annals of the poor.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power
And all that beauty, all that wealth ere gave,
Awaits alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

CHAPTER I

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the subject. It begins with a definition of the term "philosophy" and then proceeds to a discussion of the various branches of the subject. The author then discusses the history of philosophy, from the ancient Greeks to the modern era. He then discusses the various methods of philosophy, from the deductive method to the inductive method. Finally, he discusses the various schools of thought in philosophy, from the Stoics to the moderns.

CHAPTER II

The second part of the book is devoted to a discussion of the various branches of philosophy. It begins with a discussion of metaphysics, which is the study of the nature of reality. It then discusses epistemology, which is the study of knowledge. Finally, it discusses ethics, which is the study of morality. The author discusses the various theories of each of these branches, from the ancient Greeks to the modern era.

CHAPTER III

The third part of the book is devoted to a discussion of the various methods of philosophy. It begins with a discussion of the deductive method, which is the method of reasoning from general principles to specific conclusions. It then discusses the inductive method, which is the method of reasoning from specific observations to general principles. Finally, it discusses the dialectical method, which is the method of reasoning by the use of contradictions. The author discusses the various theories of each of these methods, from the ancient Greeks to the modern era.
